ACADEMIC VACANCY

POSITION: Assistant Professor Position in the School of Geosciences

EEO# SC 9-17

RESPONSIBILITIES:

This is a tenure-track faculty position in Environmental Science focusing on bioremediation coupling of physical and biogeochemical processes in soils. The successful applicant must be enthusiastic about teaching undergraduate and graduate courses (such as introductory and advanced soil science, soil biology, soil biogeochemistry, and the fate and transport of contaminants) and must be capable of building a strong, externally-funded research program. The position involves mentoring students at the undergraduate and graduate levels and engagement in departmental and university service. The applicant must demonstrate institutional citizenship through active engagement at the department, college, university, community, and professional levels. The purpose of this hire is to build strength in the areas of soil science.

QUALIFICATIONS:

The successful applicant must have a Ph.D. (post-doctoral experience is preferred) and demonstrated teaching and research experience in soil microbiology, soil or sediment biogeochemistry, soil or sediment transport and/or pollution, or a closely-related field within a science-based program. Skills that include the application of molecular tools in environment, aqueous geochemical analysis focusing on organic pollutants (PAHs, chlorinated solvents, MTBE), inorganics and environmental tracers (e.g. isotopes, CFCs, noble gases), and modeling of sediment transport and/or the fate of contaminants will be advantageous. Successful candidates must be committed to working effectively with diverse student populations and in interdisciplinary teams. Applicants are expected to describe their commitment to fostering a diverse educational environment through their research, teaching, and/or service activities.

UNIVERSITY AND COMMUNITY:

The School of Geosciences combines the programs of Geology and Environmental Sciences and includes 13 full-time faculty, 8 instructors and staff, and approximately 180 undergraduate majors and 90 graduate students. Further information on the School of Geosciences is available at our website, <http://geos.louisiana.edu/>.

The mission of the University of Louisiana at Lafayette is to offer exceptional education informed by diverse world-views striving to develop innovative leaders who advance knowledge. The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges accredits the University, which offers undergraduate and graduate degrees in the arts, sciences, and professional programs. The University is a public research university with high research activity, an enrollment of over 18,000 students and 800 faculty members. UL Lafayette is the largest of nine universities in the University of Louisiana System. The University offers degree programs in 55 undergraduate disciplines, 15 post-bachelor certificates, seven graduate certificates, the master's degree in 28 disciplines and the doctorate in 10 disciplines. Additional information about the University is available on the University's webpage at <http://louisiana.edu/>

SALARY: Commensurate with experience.

ANTICIPATED START DATE: August 1, 2018

APPLICATIONS:

To apply, send as a single PDF file that includes your name in the title, an application letter, CV, separate statements of teaching and research interests, and the names and contact information (post and email) of three references to nadean@louisiana.edu. The review process will continue until the position is filled. To ensure full consideration, receipt of the complete application material is required before October 16, 2017. Questions regarding this position can be directed to Dr. Carl Richter (richter@louisiana.edu; phone 337-482-5353).
